This interesting dance has no musical accompaniment; there is no gamelan or any other instrument. The rhythm is provided by chanting monkey chorus. It is performed by over 100 men, sitting in circle around a large branching torch constantly chanting “chak”. The rhythm sound of the chanting gave the name of this dance “ke - chak”. The swaying and bending of their bodies, the raising and stretching of their hands, makes it a living theater with all the dramatic effect. The bizarre monkey-like sounds, and the fierce series of hissing, makes it a very unnerving dance, which undoubtedly will haunt you for a long time.
